Heath High School

Heath, Ohio

Volume 1

Foreword

On September 17, 1962, Heath High School was no longer a lifeless plan; no longer stacks of intricate blueprints; no longer cold, unfinished stone and mortar. Heath High became a living force when we walked through its doors. We watched the building grow around us as we learned to function as a student body. The building grew and we grew; we initiated our traditions; we formed our organizations; we got to know our teachers and each other.

As the year progressed, we began to feel the rhythm of school life and we began to know and love our very own school. Now we belonged to it, and it to us.

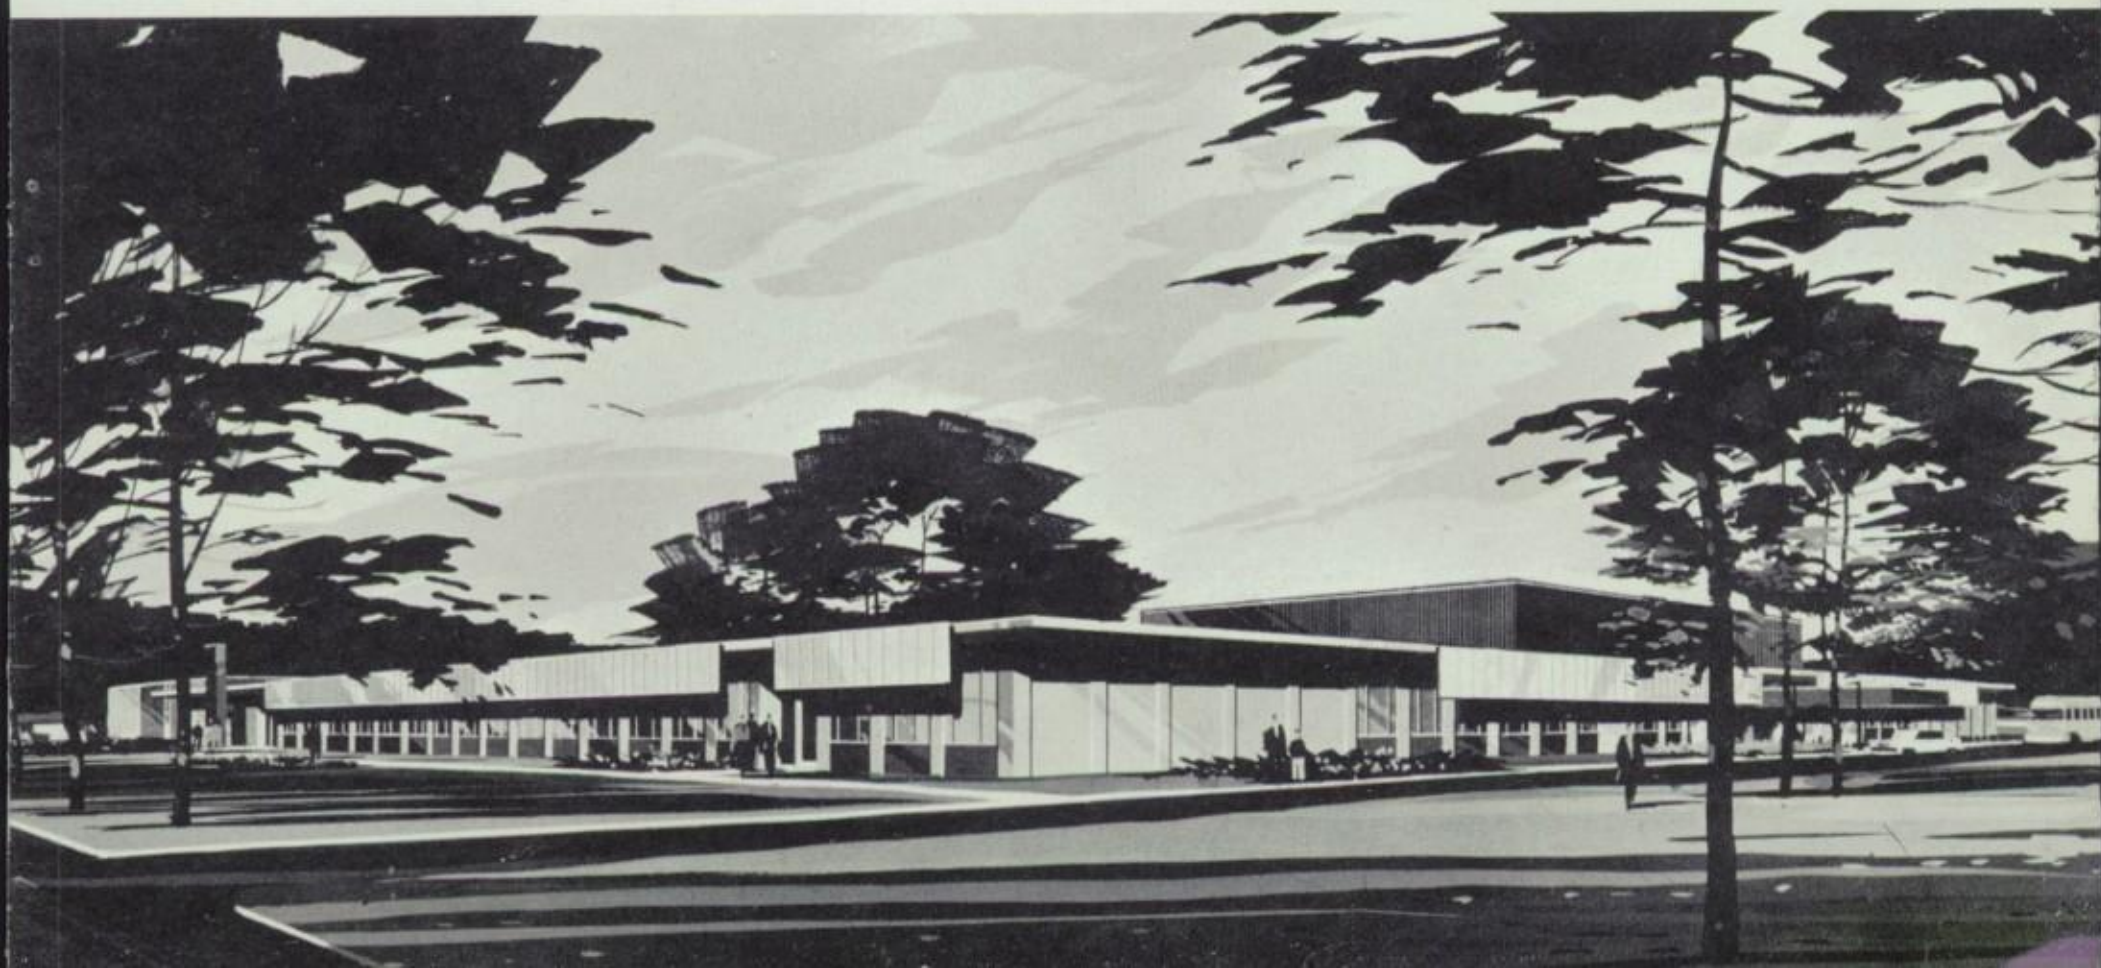

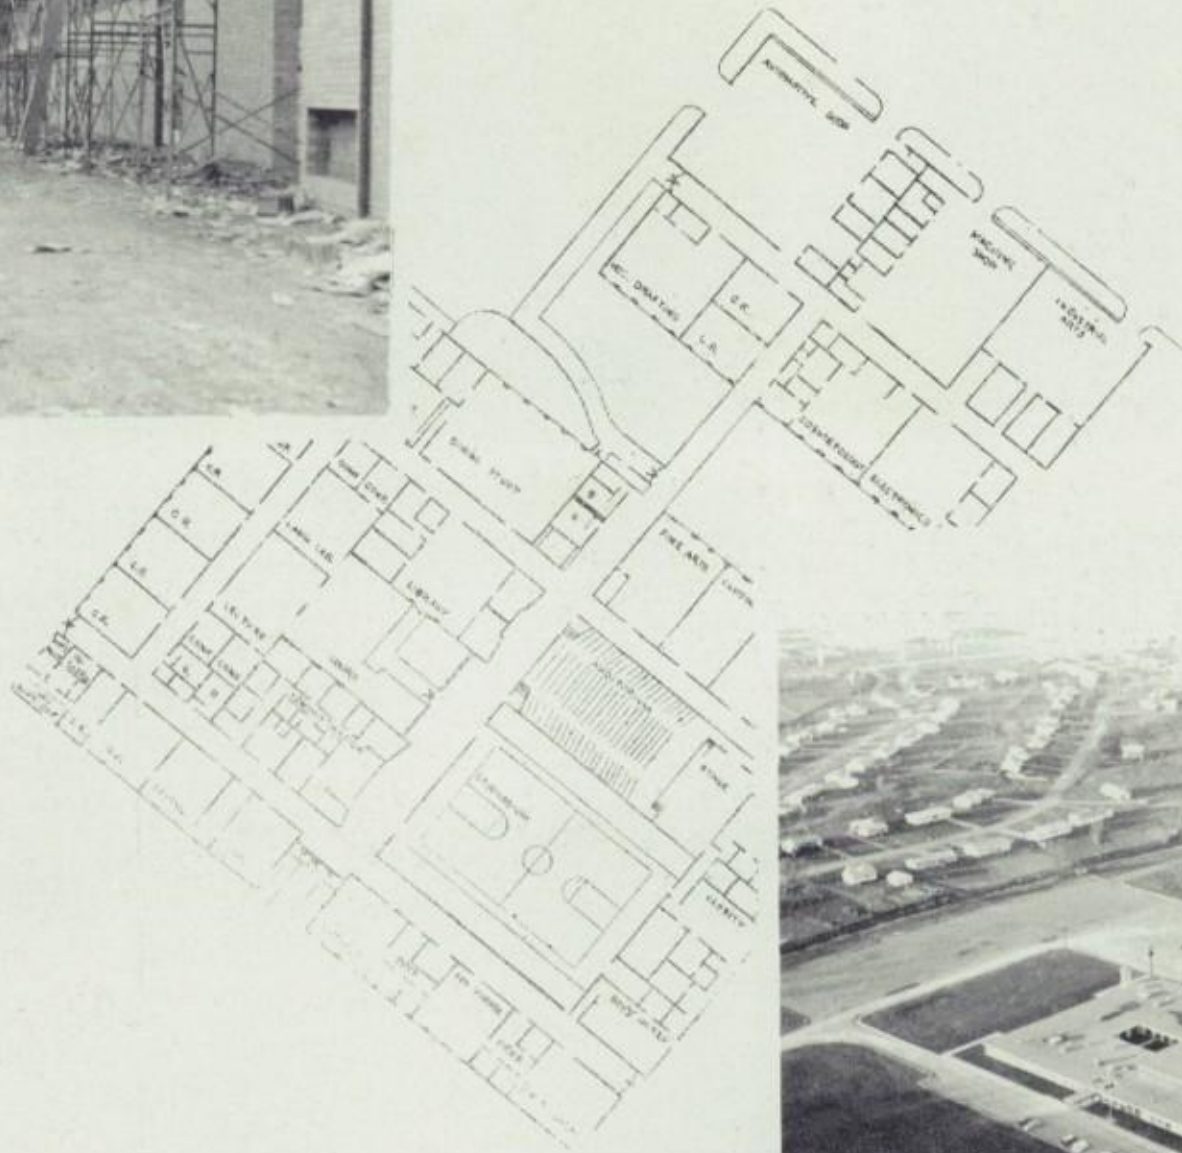

In the following pages, the Heath High School ERICA Staff has attempted to capture what it was like to be a student here at Heath High during its very first year - - a year that we shall always remember.

He gave to each day what belonged to the day and when that work was finally done,

he began a new chapter at home - featuring

He always finds time to counsel students and to discuss school problems.

high gear demands a new kind of administrator - - a counsebusiness manager, and public relations expert. America's chinery remains efficient only as long as it is kept in opera-professionals who are experts in their fields.

increasing student population requires an educator who is ca-interest far beyond the walls of the classroom; who is to improve himself intellectually and professionally, and who facilities of a modern school plant are utilized wisely. The mote the intellectual, emotional and social welfare of all the sphere of his influence.

Heath High are proud of their school and its first administra-Swank, who exemplifies all of these qualities. His influence tomorrow!

A regular attendant to all school events . . . Even carrying two purses

A real "ham" actor - - he made our pep sessions interesting and fun (shown here about to scalp Miss Maybold).

Famous "R. P. U." day

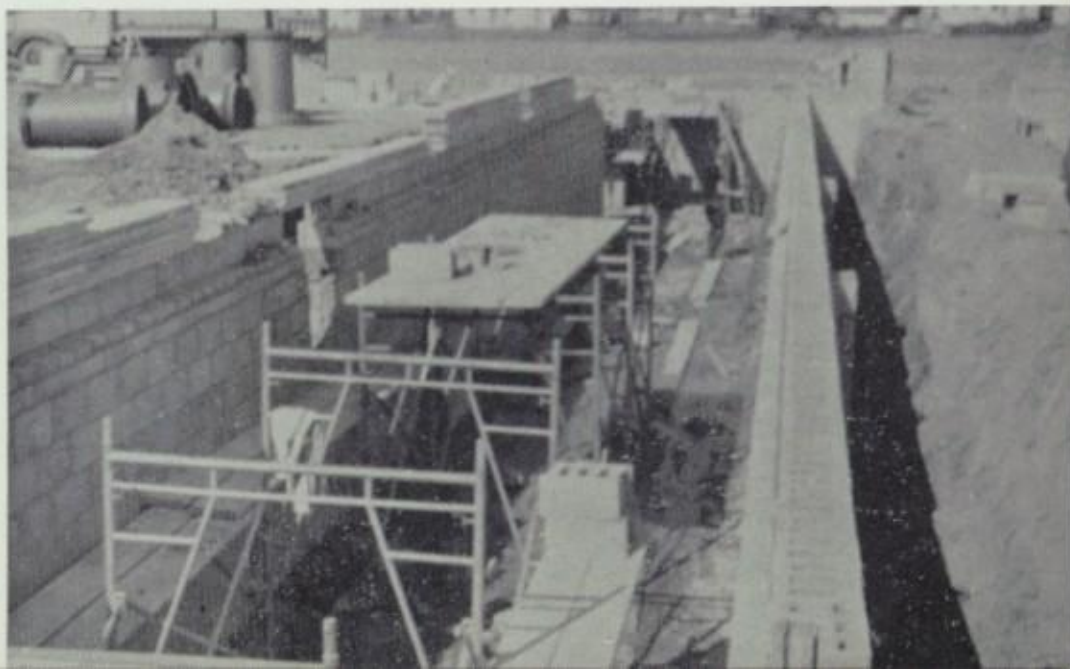

It started with a path running through a field . . . a quiet little lane which turned off of Lover's Lane and slowly made its way to the spot where our present school was built . . . the Heath School Board, and Mr. Swank, looked the field over and visioned a high school to be on that spot.

The bulldozers moved in . . . the hills and the valleys became level . . . next came the drainage men . . . the blocklayers . . . the plumbers . . . the carpenters . . . the builders . . .

Steel came . . . cement came . . . wood and wire arrived and slowly, so slowly at first it seemed, the building went up.

People in the community watched the building go up . . . future students of Heath High watched the progress . . . future teachers drove by to check the progress. Each day it came a little nearer to completion.

Two Weeks
Of School
But
No
Students

Teachers get acquainted by carrying chairs to the needed spot.

As a lazy August gave up the battle to a brisk September, Rod Swank, Superintendent of Schools, anxiously watched the calendar and left the final decision in the hands of workmen and the unpredictable weatherman.

On September 3, the Heath School District opened for the year 1962-63, but the Heath High School remained closed. We were a student body without a school !

While we were enjoying two more weeks of vacation, our principal and teachers were busy at school each day, carrying books and equipment, putting the new equipment from the packing boxes to the shelves.

Then, on September 17, 1962, our new school was ready for us - - and we were ready for it!

Where
do these go?

Our library was beautiful but the books were a little late in arriving.

I'll lean on the door -
you sweep!

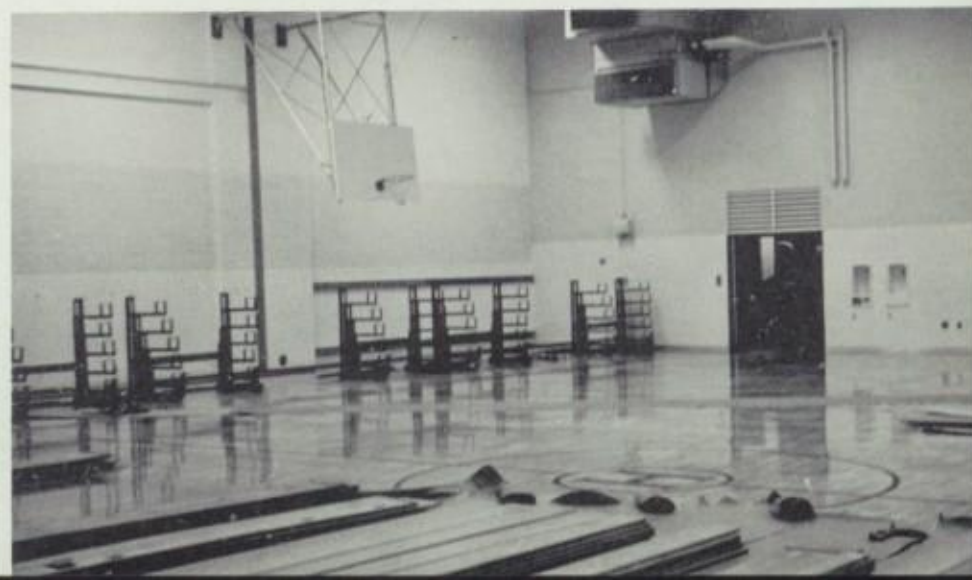

A room . . . a teacher . . . waiting . . . so quiet now . . . but tomorrow, this room will be alive . . . the students are yet to come.

Hurry up with that gym - basketball season will soon be here.

Dedication of the New School

Our gym stands ready!

It was a beautiful day on Sunday, March 24, 1963, and the faculty and staff of Heath High School joined the School Board, the Architect and the Builders in dedicating this educational facility to the citizens of Heath.

SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

In teaching one of our most rewarding experiences is that of being able to work with students helping them learn to appreciate good books, music, sportsmanship, and citizenship. Our task is certainly made easier when we have young men and women who work to develop it further.

May I say to the present senior class and to the underclassmen who will follow that your memories of Heath High will remain with you for years to come. The facilities we are privileged to use and the fine faculty we have, have only been possible through the tremendous sacrifice made by your parents. As our dedication speaker, Dr. Flemming stated: "The people of this community have refused to settle for mediocrity and have insisted on the pursuit of excellence in education." I hope that the desire to excel will be reflected in the lives of you, our graduates.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

Education of present day and future generations will be tremendously enhanced through the facilities of Heath High of the present year. Its contributions to the moral, cultural, educational and civic fiber of the community will be of inestimable value.

We owe a profound debt of gratitude to our Board of Education, citizens, and to all others who have made this possible. It is a dream fulfilled. May it always adequately serve the creative purposes that motivated the edifice.

Cosmetology

Mrs. Indus Glover
Instructor

The very successful

Cosmetology is the science and practice of beauty culture. Students learn to shampoo, cut, and style hair. They learn tinting, dyeing and manicuring along with bleaching of the hair. The girls learn to give facials and how to apply make-up correctly.

Every day they have a related or theory class in which they learn the composition of the skin, nails and hair. Students practice on each other the first semester. The second semester the public is welcome to come. A small fee is charged for this service.

The students take a State Board Exam and upon passing become licensed beauticians at the end of their senior year.

Like all Vocational courses, in this class the students spend two years learning the trade. The first year is for learning electricity starting with the most simple electrical experiments.

Electricity covers such things as appliance repair, motor controls, the winding of motors and generators, blueprint reading and residential wiring. The students also learn the proper use of test equipment.

The second year is then spent on the more complex electronic lessons.

Students are given training in shop management; the care and use and responsibility in using hand and power tools.

They are taught the safety and hazards of the machines as well as the theory and operation by actual experience. That is, they themselves operate each machine and make items, parts and complete jobs just as a machinist does in industry.

Heath Vocational High Is First Built In Ohio

This is an aerial view of the new Heath High School which opens its doors Monday, and the Heath Area Vocational School which began classes early this week. The high school is the large building in the foreground and the vocational school is the smaller building connected to the high school by a corridor. (Advocate photo).

The first building constructed in Ohio for the purpose of housing an area vocational high school was opened to students Monday in Heath.

Heath's school is only the second such school in Ohio. The first, in Pike County, is in a building that was purchased from the federal government by school officials.

Heath's vocational school is housed under a separate roof but is connected by an enclosed corridor with the academic high school.

Students arrive at 8:30 a. m. from seven county schools and from the Newark City and Granville Exempted School districts.

They are returned to their own high schools for any extra-curricular activities at 2:34 p. m. County students will be taught all regular academic subjects at Heath High School when it opens Monday.

Since the vocational program is on a two-year basis, all students in the school this year are juniors. Students were accepted after they took interest and aptitude tests and many students remain on a waiting list.

Capacity for the vocational building is 240 and vocational director S. N. Guckenheimer said that this year's quota is about 105 juniors. Students will be working with $280,000 worth of surplus machinery, given by the federal government to Heath's board of education at a cost of $8,000.

Executive school head R. W. Swank said that all the surplus equipment is in "excellent condition." School board has also purchased some new machinery.

Over 30 pieces of machinery are in the machine shop, including lathes and milling machines. Students work in the shop all morning, or for a total of four periods a day.

In the automotive shop, $16,000 worth of equipment includes complete brake, testing, and wheel alignment equipment. The shop will have eight auto stalls and two hoists.

Guckenheimer said that the school hopes to make an agreement with area automobile dealers for students to service cars that are brought in as trade-ins at agencies.

Guckenheimer, former director of vocational and adult education in New Philadelphia, added that students would work with junked autos for some time before working on what he calls "live" autos.

The cosmetology area includes a reception room, two storage rooms, a working laboratory, and an office for instruction.

Other areas are the drafting department, electronics department, industrial arts department, two "related" classrooms, and Guckenheimer's office.

The industrial arts department is for Heath High School boys not taking vocational school curriculum. Students will take industrial arts two periods a day.

The two "related" classrooms are used to teach vocational students courses related to their main study, giving them what Guckenheimer calls a combination of "technical knowledge and practical experience."

ACTIVITIES

Dave Dunlap Names Our Yearbook "THE ERICA"

Heath High School was to have its first school annual, and of course the annual had to have a name. A contest was held among the students and faculty to come up with a name that would be ours alone.

There were over one hundred fifty names entered in the contest and the staff finally decided as the best entry the name ERICA. It was entered by Dave Dunlap (with the help of his mother). It is a Botanical name and its meaning is "of the Heath family." It is the scientific name for the genus of the heath plant - - an evergreen - - and thus ERICA is our scientific name.

THE ERICA - - we will call our yearbook THE ERICA from this day hence - - we are proud of our name and the author, Dave Dunlap!

"Cheaper By The Dozen"

We opened the first dramatic production, Seventeenth Summer, at the Fulton School Auditorium and played to near capacity crowds on November 16th and 17th.

One of our biggest thrills, however, came when we were able to use our own high school auditorium for the spring production, Cheaper by the Dozen.

The critics' reviews indicated that both plays were smashing successes.

Music At Heath High

The Senior High Chorus and Girls Glee Club have had a busy year. In addition to participating in various assemblies, they presented a concert at Christmas and one in the spring. They have also worked hard to build their treasury. Projects included a car wash, candy-selling, and a semi-formal dance, "Winter Wonderland." The girls of the Triple Trio have been equally busy. Their most memorable event was the participating in the dedication of our new high school.

BASEBALL 1963

Our baseball team was young and inexperienced but each boy worked hard and the team played very well against good experienced county teams. Each boy on the team will be back next year, so we have a lot to look forward to next year.

Coach Brigner and all the team are to be congratulated on a fine first year!

LOOKING

AHEAD

Today as never before, there is a greater interest on the part of Americans in what the future holds, and how our nation is prepared to meet the demands and challenges ahead.

Electric power will grow with the future and contribute greatly to it. To assure the effective role of electricity in serving the needs of the nation, the electric companies will continue to need capable and well-educated young people to meet the challenge of tomorrow.

This is Heath's first yearbook. It is a record of the events, emotions, and desires that were blended to transform our school from an empty shell of concrete and steel into a living, breathing institution of learning. It is the sound of the laughter, the gaiety, the sorrows and the tears that made it great.

It is the story of those who helped it along; Mr. Marks, our first principal, Mr. Swank, our Superintendent, the Administration and the Faculty, but most it is the story of You, the people who became its life's blood.

We, the Staff, sincerely hope that you have enjoyed this first Volume of the ERICA.

A special thanks goes to the advertisers who have liberally helped to support this first book.
